

Acknowledgments and report, December 2007

Jonathan Baron, Editor

As of the last regular issue of the second year of publication, here are some statistics:

- 53 articles have been published.
- 4 others are expected to appear in the next issue, so far.
- 45 articles have been official rejected.
- 22 articles are in Limbo.

These categories are loose, and they do not include other articles that were “re-jected,” after initial inquiries without formal submission. A few of the published articles were solicited. “Limbo” means that the articles are either under review or have been reviewed and are awaiting responses from authors. In some cases the reviews required additional data, so authors may have given up. We don’t know.

The publication lag is typically quite short. Beginning in March 2007, article numbers (as reflected in the links to them) are codes representing the date of submission. For example, 7308 is the paper submitted on March 8, 2007. Sometimes reviews are slow in coming, and sometimes authors take a long time to respond to them. I have not bothered to calculate the various times involved in these stages.
